SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, August 15, 2023 — Leading global communications, conferencing, and collaboration solutions provider ClearOne (NASDAQ: CLRO) today announced that its entire line of commercial and residential solutions is available for specification within the popular D-Tools software platform for integrators.

D-Tools' System Integrator software and D-Tools Cloud platform make it easier than ever for integrators to specify ClearOne solutions for any type of installation, according to ClearOne Vice President of Sales, Americas Jim Mergens.

"ClearOne offers solutions for every type of commercial and residential collaboration environment, from large auditoriums and conference rooms to huddle spaces and home offices. Making this line up available to partners on the D-Tools platform is going to greatly simplify the specification process and stimulate a new level of creativity around system design. A whole new world of possibilities is going to open for integrators, technology consultants and the customers they serve," Mergens emphasized.

"We are excited to add ClearOne to our partner database within D-Tools' software solutions," said Barrie McCorkle, Director of Supplier Programs, D-Tools. "Including ClearOne in our platform makes an exciting new series of solutions available to our integrators, one that is going to expand the range of possibilities they offer customers."

D-Tools' award-winning on-premises software, System Integrator (SI), and cloud-based platform, D-Tools Cloud, streamline project workflows for system integrators including sales, comprehensive system, design, project documentation, procurement, installation, back office management, and service, through a data-driven process that leverages an extensive and integrated product library. The D-Tools product library will now include detailed product information and dealer-specific pricing for ClearOne's full line of communications, conferencing, and collaboration solutions and related accessory products.
