NetStreams Welcomes Clarity AV as New Manufacturer's Representative

Clarity AV will represent NetStreams line of residential products in the Southern California region

SALT LAKE CITY, Feb. 22 /PRNewswire-FirstCall/ -- NetStreams, the pioneer in digital media networks based on Internet Protocol (IP) technology, recently acquired by ClearOne (Nasdaq: CLRO), the leading global provider of audio conferencing solutions today announced their new partnership with Clarity AV.

"We have created several new initiatives to provide an exceptional level of support to our customers," said Buzz Goddard, Vice President - Worldwide Residential Sales at ClearOne. "One of the initiatives is to provide our Residential product dealers with access to local strategic partners to help them achieve success with NetStreams' product lines. Clarity is an extremely well regarded firm with veteran managers who know how to help integrators succeed in today's challenging business environment," said Goddard. "I am delighted to be working with them."

"Netstreams and their IP technology based DigiLinX™ system is the future, AND the now," said Mark Cichowski, CEO of Clarity AV. "For years, dealers talked about "future-proofing" installs with proper wiring and such. With Netstreams you get a robust line, an easy to program back-end that works great, products that are easy to operate by the end user, and an entire system that is easily upgradeable," said Cichowski. "The added benefit that is really worth mentioning is that you future-proof the entire home as well. CLARITY is excited to partner with Netstreams and help dealers build their business with this impressive product line."
